An English teacher once introduced me to her way of _____ in her classroom. Each student has his or her daily folder. Inside each folder, she will write instructions to each student about what is expected of him or her during the work that will generally be assigned to the class that week. One student may be told to only do five of the twenty spelling words that week. Another may be told to find a story to read on the same topic that the rest of the class is doing. She explains that each of us has differences. Some of us play basketball better than others. Some of us run faster than others. So, it is not fair to expect everyone in the classroom to accomplish the same things.

Much of socialization takes place during human interaction, without the deliberate intent to impart knowledge or values. For example, a four-year-old approaches two teachers conversing and excitedly says, “Miss Jones, Miss Jones, look!” One teacher says, “Sally, don’t interrupt; we’re talking.” Later that morning Sally and her friend Tanya are busily playing with Legos. Sally is explaining and demonstrating to Tanya how to fit the pieces together. Miss Jones comes over to the block corner and interrupts with, “Girls, please stop what you’re doing and come see what Rene has brought to school.” It is very likely that the message Sally received from the morning’s interactions was that it is not OK for children to interrupt adults, but it is OK for adults to interrupt children. The example shows that _____ may be the product of involvement in human interaction or observation of interaction.
