각 네모 안의 말이 문장을 완성할 수 있는지 (예비) 판정을 한다.

(A) Like fragments from old songs, clothes can evoke / erase both cherished and painful memories.

- evoke ‘불러일으키다’ : 옷이 소중하고 고통스러운 기억을 불러일으킬 수 있음
- erase ‘(마음에서) 없애다’ : 옷이 기억을 지울 수 있는 상황이 드물

(B) A(n) impractical / brand-new white scarf might be pulled out of a donation bag at the last minute because of the promise of elegance it once held for its owner.

- impractical ‘비실용적인’ : 비실용적인 스카프를 기증하려다 그만둘 수 있음
- brand-new ‘새 상품의’ : 새 스카프를 기증하려다 그만두는 것도 가능함

(C) And a ripped T-shirt might be rescued / forgotten from the dust rag bin long after the name of the rock band once written across it has faded.

- rescued ‘구하다’ : 찢어진 티셔츠를 갈레통에서 꺼내, 버리지 않을 수 있음
- forgotten ‘망각하다’ : 갈레통이 망각의 근원(source)이 될 수 있는 상황이 드물

☞ 따라서 (A)에는 evoke가, (C)에는 rescued가 들어갈 가능성이 높다.

A worn-thin dress may hang in the back of a closet even though it hasn't been worn in years because the faint scent of pine that lingers on it is all that remains of someone's sixteenth summer. A(n) (B) impractical / brand-new white scarf might be pulled out of a donation bag at the last minute because of the promise of elegance it once held for its owner.

옷장 뒤쪽에 걸어 두었던, 닳아서 얇아진 드레스에 남아 있는 열은 소나무 향내가 열여섯 살 여름의 자취로 느껴진다고 했으므로, 낡았지만 희미한 추억을 떠올리게 해 주는 드레스와 어울리는 것은 brand-new(새 상품의) 스카프보다는 impractical(비실용적인) 스카프이다.

☞ 따라서 (B)에는 impractical이 들어가야 문맥과 어울린다.

옷은 소중하고 가슴 아픈 기억 둘 다 불러일으킬 수 있다. 그러한 과거의 소중한 추억 때문에 비실용적인 스카프이긴 해도 기증품 자루에서 다시 빼내게 되거나, 찢어진 티셔츠라도 먼지 갈레통에서 다시 꺼내게 되는 것이다.

Some pessimistic scientists believe that climate change on Earth has already passed the ‘tipping point’ beyond which it is not (A) difficult / possible to stop the slide into global meltdown. But other groups of scientists think that even if the tipping point has been and gone there might still be hope for the planet in the form of geo-engineering, which is superscale design-and-build work that could (B) estimate / reverse the effects of climate change. The ideas put forward include sending giant sunshades into space to block out some of the Sun’s light; building a network of industrial plants around the globe that would suck in carbon dioxide, compress it into liquid, and then pump it underground; and tipping gallons of fertilizer into the oceans to (C) hinder / encourage the growth of marine plant life to absorb carbon dioxide from the air by photosynthesis. * compress 압축하다

Ostentation can be a credible boast of quality. A good example of this is the peacock’s tail. Although it may appear to be a wasteful display, the showy tail actually has the purpose of (A) showing / doubting that the male is healthy. The peacock’s tail has many and varied economic equivalents in the business world. Banks and insurance companies have head offices that are extremely magnificent beyond the needs of their dealings. The showy offices signal that the company is (B) failing / stable, distinguishing it from shakier companies that cannot afford them. As a signal that they (C) expect / hesitate to still be there for you long into the future, retailers locate themselves in high-rent districts like New York’s Fifth Avenue when a less expensive address would serve. * ostentation (재산 · 지식 · 힘 등의) 과시

Although many important Greek scientists such as Galen and Ptolemy lived in the Roman Empire, the Romans themselves (A) contributed / distributed comparatively little to science. They adopted the mathematics of the Greeks and applied it very successfully to engineering and architecture. The fruits of this (B) applicant / application are seen today in many Roman remains, especially in some of their very wonderful aqueducts for carrying water to their towns. But their engineers and scientists were always servants and very often slaves, and no honor or recognition was given to them. It is no wonder, therefore, that science did not (C) advance / decline during the Roman Empire.

Intellectually, we all know that people can look at issues from many different viewpoints. Intellectually, we even (A) deny / admit that at least some of the perspectives that differ from our own have something to offer — a new opinion on the problem or an insightful notion. We may even be perfectly capable of bringing these (B) opposing / established perspectives to our minds. Yet we persist in focusing on our own viewpoint, a tendency that David Perkins calls my-side bias. This my-side bias acts like a default setting. It (C) overturns / supports our intellectual understanding that different interpretations of events and different opinions about them are highly likely, so that we return to seeing the world from our own point of view even after acknowledging differing positions.

Reaching beyond realism, the naturalists tried to illustrate as faithfully as possible whatever was observable to them within their literary works. They wanted to (A) hide / reveal the dominant states of things in all areas of life. While the realists tried to evoke the impression that the characters really exist and that the events narrated are the events of ordinary experience, the naturalists wanted to give a strictly (B) objective / subjective depiction of the struggle against nature as a hopeless fight, believing that human behavior is determined by the environment. The reason for this shift of the fundamental idea of realism was the (C) unnoticeable / visible decline of the living conditions of the lower classes in the 19th century. Large cities became the focus of literature due to miserable housing conditions, factories, diseases, and widespread hunger.

If there is to be toleration in the world, one of the things taught in schools must be the habit of weighing evidence, and the practice of not giving full (A) consent / objection to propositions which there is no reason to believe true. For example, the art of reading newspapers should be taught. The schoolmaster should select some incident which happened a good many years ago, and roused political passions in its day. He should then read to the schoolchildren what was said by the newspapers on one side, what was said by those on the other, and some (B) biased / fair account of what really happened. He should make them understand that everything in newspapers is more or less untrue. The critical skepticism which would result from this teaching would make the children (C) unprotected / free from overly naive appeals to idealism in later life.

Human skin owes its color to the ① presence of particles known as melanin. The primary function of melanin is to ② protect the upper levels of the skin from being damaged by the sun's ultraviolet rays. This radiation poses a critical problem for our kind because we lack the dense coat of hair that acts as a sunscreen for most mammals. Hairlessness exposes us to two kinds of radiation ③ dangers: ordinary sunburn and skin cancers. Melanin is the body's first line of defense against these afflictions. The more melanin particles, the darker the skin, and the ④ higher the risk of sunburn and all forms of skin cancer. This explains why the highest rates for skin cancer are found in sun-drenched lands such as Australia, where light-skinned people of European descent spend a good part of their lives ⑤ outdoors wearing scanty clothes.

* scanty (뜻이) 몸을 가린 듯 만 듯한

Two psychologists, Dan Kindlon and Michael Thompson, who wrote together a book entitled Raising Cain, argue that America, as a society, has so ① mishandled the emotional lives of boys that it has produced many distant and troubled men. Fathers and mothers, male and female teachers alike, all unconsciously conspire, the authors suggest, to ② limit the emotional development of boys. As they put it, we want our boys to be "tough" and "strong" based on images of ③ manliness we absorbed from our culture. So when a child is hurting, when he's sad, angry, frustrated, disappointed, or frightened, we don't ④ allow him to learn about what he's feeling. We push him back inside himself with comments like "Just tough it out" or "You need to be strong." As a result, boys ⑤ possess "emotional literacy," the ability to express their own feelings and understand emotions in others.

After millions of years of experience on earth, we have acquired the power to affect our planet's climate. The theory has to do with the ① accumulation of dust and carbon dioxide that modern technology pours into the atmosphere in great quantities. The dust tends to reduce the amount of incoming solar radiation, thereby ② cooling the earth. The carbon dioxide tends to ③ trap heat that would ordinarily escape to outer space, thereby warming the earth. If either effect is large enough, the earth's average temperature might change a degree or two, with ④ disastrous results. An increase in temperature might melt the icecaps and raise the level of the ocean as much as 300 feet. All of this is ⑤ confirmed, of course. No one really knows what, if anything, is happening to the climate or how long such events might take to occur.

There are several Egyptian paintings of great interest preserved among the numerous other ① remains of Egyptian art in the British Museum. Unfortunately, the originally brilliant colors of these have faded, and many of them are now fast ② decaying. When the paintings were first discovered, however, their colors were as bright and pure as when they were first painted, because they had not been exposed to the influence of the ③ atmosphere. Red, yellow, green and blue, with black and white, were the colors employed. These were applied ④ collectively, so that no variety of tint was produced. Different colors were used for different things, but almost ⑤ invariably the same color for the same thing. Thus men and women were usually red, the men several shades darker than the women, water blue, birds blue and green, and so on.

The underlying idea of world history is that the interaction among human societies ① resembles not the relationships among building blocks, but rather among bacteria. Building blocks can be stacked next to or on top of each other, but they rarely if ever ② affect their neighbors' shapes or composition. Bacteria, however, fundamentally shape each other as they interact. Because the membranes covering bacteria are full of pores, bacteria can exchange genetic information and can even fundamentally ③ alter each other's basic make-up when they touch. Similarly, human societies in contact affect each other's development. World historians, ④ rejecting this, seek to understand human history through studying both developments within societies and the way in which societies relate to each other. They look not only at the process of invention but also at the key role played by the ⑤ spreading of people, things, and ideas around the world.

Spotlights can be more or less focused. When focused to their maximum extent, they illuminate a very small area with a very bright light. When de-focused, they illuminate a larger area, but the light is less ① intense. The same is true for attention. When we are relaxed, and not in the grip of any particular emotion, our mental spotlight is relatively ② unfocused, and more thoughts may drift through our awareness. When an emotion occurs, however, our mental spotlight suddenly ③ contracts, focusing on one small thought to the exclusion of all others. This thought is usually a representation of the external object that ④ stabilized the emotion. Love, for example, makes it hard to think of anything except the beloved. Emotions are often blamed for ⑤ distracting us, so it might seem strange to say that they help to focus our attention. However, emotions distract us from one thought only to make us pay attention to another.

(A), (B), (C)가 포함된 각 부분의 의미를 짐작한다.

(A) On January 10, 1992, a ship traveled / traveling through rough seas lost 12 cargo containers, ~.

1992년 1월 10일, 거친 바다를 항해하던 배 한 척이 12개의 화물 컨테이너를 잃었는데, ~.

(B) After seven months, the first toys made landfall on beaches near Sitka, Alaska, 3,540 kilometers from what / where they were lost.

7개월 후에 잃어버린 장소에서 3,540킬로미터 떨어진 알래스카의 Sitka 근처 해변 육지에 첫 번째 장난감들이 도달했다.

(C) Some toy animals stayed at sea even / very longer.

어떤 동물 장난감들은 바다에 훨씬 더 오래 있었다.

문장 구조를 이해하고 적용해야 할 어법을 생각한다.

(A) 문법적인 열과 비문법적인 열(Grammatical and Ungrammatical Strings)

On January 10, 1992, a ship traveled / traveling through rough seas lost 12 cargo containers, ~.

→ 동사 lost 이전까지의 a ship traveled through rough seas와 a ship traveling through rough seas가 둘 다 문법적이지만, 하나의 문장(sentence)에 하나의 정형동사만이 있을 수 있기 때문에 네모 안에 traveling이 들어가야 한다.

(B) 관계사(what vs. where)

After seven months, the first toys made landfall on beaches near Sitka, Alaska, 3,540 kilometers from they were lost.

what: '~인[한] 것' <(the thing that ~)> where: '~인[한] 곳' <(the place) where ~>

After seven months, the first toys made landfall on beaches near Sitka, Alaska, 3,540 kilometers from what / where they were lost.

→ what은 선행사를 포함하는 관계사이므로 what이 오려면 <what was lost(주어 포함) / what they lost(목적어 포함)>처럼 what 뒤에 주어 또는 목적어가 비어 있어야 한다. 따라서 what은 적절하지 않다.

→ where 뒤에는 동사의 성격에 따라 <주어+동사> 혹은 <주어+동사+목적어>와 같은 형태의 문장이 와야 한다. 'they were lost'는 <주어+동사> 형태의 문장이므로 안에는 where가 적절하다.

(C) 원급과 비교급 형용사를 강조하는 표현

Some toy animals stayed at sea even / very longer.

→ 원급을 강조하는 경우에는 very를, 비교급을 강조하는 경우에는 much 또는 even을 사용하여 수식한다.
