Bloodhound Car에 관한 다음 글의 내용과 일치하지 않는 것은?

• 2011년 6월 시행 모의평가 38번 •

What's faster than a speeding bullet and isn't named Superman? The answer is the Bloodhound Car, or soon will be. Now being built in England, it is expected to be completed within a year. Powered by three engines, it is designed to go 1,050 miles per hour (mph), which would blast past the current land speed record of 763 mph, set in 1997. It is 13 meters long, 1.5 meters wide and 2 meters tall, and weighs 6.4 tons. Due to its enormous weight, it won't be the quickest car in the world from 0 to 100 mph, as it will take 15 seconds. But after that, it will only take 25 seconds to go from 100 to 1,000 mph! The Bloodhound Car is scheduled to make its record-breaking attempt in 2013 at the Hakskeen Pan Desert in South Africa.

- ① 현재 England에서 제작되고 있다.
- ② 시속 1,050마일로 주행이 가능하도록 설계되어 있다.
- ③ 출발 후 시속 100마일에 도달하는 시간이 세계에서 가장 짧을 것이다.
- ④ 시속 100마일에서 1,000마일로 높이는 데 25초가 걸릴 것이다.
- ⑤ Hakskeen Pan Desert에서 기록 경신에 도전할 예정이다.

The robotic teddy bear Huggable, built as a companion for children and the elderly, has two thousand sensors under its fur-covered silicon skin that can measure temperature, force, and electrical fields. Embrace it, and it hugs back. Put it on your lap, and it looks up at you with video camera eyes and nuzzles into your arms. Set it on a table, and it can look around, catch your gaze, and gesture to be picked up. All the while, the robotic bear relays audio, video, and other information wirelessly to a nurse, tutor, babysitter, or parent. Is the Huggable being hit or ignored? Has the child fallen or gotten distracted? The Huggable knows, and can tell. A Huggable can strengthen family ties, enabling a soldier, business traveler, or faraway grandparent to be with a child virtually.

Many people fear that the computer will replace other valuable forms of content creation, such as writing a short story on a blank piece of paper by using a simple pencil, or painting a picture with watercolors. This concern needs to be taken seriously. The computer does not replace such traditional forms of content creation but rather adds to the long list of forms available. Of course, it is up to us to determine whether digital creativity will replace other forms. Much depends on the choices that we are making — whether, for instance, we encourage our children to use paper and crayons to make their first drawings or sit them in front of our PCs and let them draw with the mouse. We should certainly be encouraging them to use a broad range of media to express themselves — including low-tech media such as pens, crayons, and paper, among others.

Online technology is available to monitor and track employee performance. This information is useful for identifying training needs and providing employees with feedback regarding their skill strengths and weaknesses. In call centers, _____ (A) _____, technology provides an ongoing assessment of performance. An employee who triggers the online system by failing to meet a defined standard, such as receiving more than five callbacks on an unresolved issue, is automatically referred to the appropriate job aid or training event. Online technology has several advantages: It provides an objective report of behaviors, the data can be quickly summarized into reports, and it does not require a trainer to observe employees. However, for online technology to be effective, managers need to ensure that the information is used to train and not to punish employees. _____ (B) _____, employees will feel threatened, which will contribute to employee dissatisfaction and turnover.

Behavioral evidence for separate types of taste receptors comes from studies of the following type: Soak your tongue for 15 seconds in a sour solution, such as unsweetened lemon juice. Then try tasting some other sour solution, such as dilute vinegar. You will find that the second solution tastes less sour than usual. Depending on the concentrations of the lemon juice and vinegar, the second solution may not taste sour at all. This phenomenon, called adaptation, reflects the fatigue of receptors sensitive to sour tastes. Now try tasting something salty, sweet, or bitter. These substances taste about the same as usual. In short, you experience little cross-adaptation—reduced response to one taste after exposure to another. Evidently, the sour receptors are different from the other taste receptors. Similarly, you can show that salt receptors are different from the others and so forth.

The fact that the intensity of a taste is ____ (A) ____ after trying the same taste, but not after trying a different taste, serves as evidence for the existence of ____ (B) ____ receptors for different tastes.

According to the World Health Organization, a quarter of modern medicines are made from plants first used in traditional medicine. ① Remedies developed from wild plants are used in the treatment of malaria, diabetes, cardiac illness, HIV/AIDS, cancer, pain, and respiratory ailments. ② The Pacific yew, which was once burned by western logging operations, was recently found to contain in its bark a substance called paclitaxol, which can help shrink cancerous tumors. ③ The removal of trees during logging has in some instances resulted in the scarcity or outright extinction of many important plant and animal species. ④ Some plants long recognized as having medicinal value have only recently been analyzed in a modern laboratory. ⑤ Willow bark, for instance, was used for centuries to relieve pain, but only in modern times was it discovered to contain salicylic acid, the active ingredient in aspirin.

You can get some physical and mental benefits from swimming. ① Swimming builds up your limbs, heart, and lungs, and improves coordination and strength. ② There's very little risk of injury, and it's an activity you will probably never grow too old to do. ③ Some people enjoy swimming because when they enter a cool, wet world where there are no distractions — with no one to listen to and no one to argue with, swimming gives them a feeling of peace. ④ If you swim on an empty stomach in the morning, swimming may not be good for you, because swimming is hard work. ⑤ This solitude can be the most pleasant part of swimming, a chance to let the mind relax as the body works, a time to relieve stress and work off tension.

When people move from one country to another, or from one area to another, their economic status may change. They will be introduced to new foods and new food customs. Although their original food customs may have been nutritionally adequate, their new environment may cause them to change their eating habits. For example, if milk was a staple (basic) food in their diet before moving and is unusually expensive in the new environment, milk may be replaced by a cheaper, nutritionally inferior beverage such as soda, coffee, or tea. Candy, possibly a luxury in their former environment, may be inexpensive. As a result, a family might increase consumption of soda or candy and reduce purchases of more nutritious foods. Someone who is not familiar with the nutritive value of foods can easily make such mistakes in food selection.

- ① impact of nutrition on eating habits
- ② importance of a balanced diet in nutrition
- ③ common misconceptions of food consumption
- ④ environmental and economic effects on food habits
- ⑤ relationships between food prices and nutritive values

Teenagers love fast food, and fortunately, some fast-food establishments are offering ① more nutritious choices than the standard hamburger meal. The adult, as a gatekeeper, can help the teenager choose ② wisely by delivering nutrition information in a way that is meaningful to the individual teen. Those who are prone to gain weight will often open their ears to news about calories in fast foods. ③ Others attend best to information about the negative effects of an ill-chosen diet on sport performance. Still others are fascinated ④ to learn of the skin's need for vitamins. Rather than dictating a list of do's and don'ts, the wise gatekeeper does more listening than talking. When asked, teens often identify for themselves the factors blocking healthy behaviors, and ⑤ acknowledge such factors is the first step in eliminating them.
